Ask Dr. Dobson: Mental Health & Well-Being Q&A

Presenter: Keith Dobson, PhD
Moderator: Andrew Szeto, PhD

Hosted by the Campus Mental Health Strategy and Faculty of Arts
Wednesday, January 24, 2024
The University of Calgary, located in the heart of Southern Alberta, both acknowledges and pays tribute to the traditional territories of the peoples of Treaty 7, which include the Blackfoot Confederacy (comprised of the Siksika, the Piikani, and the Kainai First Nations), the Tsuut’ina First Nation, and the Stoney Nakoda (including Chiniki, Bearspaw, and Goodstoney First Nations). The City of Calgary is also home to the Métis Nation of Alberta (Districts 5 and 6).
Welcome

• Moderator: Andrew Szeto, PhD, director, UCalgary Campus Mental Health Strategy

• Submit questions through the Q&A feature; we’ll answer as many as possible, plus the questions that have been submitted in advance

• A recording and the slides will be made available after the webinar

Critical ideas related to mental health

• We are all managing in a complex and dynamic world. Generally, our health will be better when we face fewer challenges and worse when we face stressors, illness, or traumatic events.

• There is no single cause for either health or illness. The optimal model is one that incorporates the broadest possible definition of biological, psychological and social factors.

• Models of mental disorders tend to focus on risk, and factors that are associated with an increase in problems. We can also focus on resilience, and factors that reduce or mitigate mental health problems.

• Just as there is no single cause for disorders, there is often no single “best” treatment or coping strategy. Evidence-based strategies are recommended.

• It is important to have compassion for yourself and for others.
