“ My name is Isabel Fandino, I was born and raised in Porto Alegre, Brazil, and I’m currently enrolled in the sociology Master’s program at the University of Calgary.

My experience at the University of Calgary has been one of a kind. It’s not always hot and sunny, but I never regret moving here and choosing to study sociology. I’m extremely thankful for the opportunities I found on campus because they truly changed me. Before moving from Brazil my worldview seemed wide, but it was in fact limited.

Now I understand so much more about the world, but I know there’s so much more to be learned. I chose UCalgary because it checked all the boxes: amazing research focus, while still valuing community with endless opportunity for student involvement on and off campus. ”
