

Phoebe Ng is a medical student, class of 2022, at the University of Calgary. Outside of classes, she is involved with health humanities, social justice in medicine, and tries hard not to accidentally smack her dog while exercising in a tiny apartment. Before this, she studied a BSc Honours in Cell and Developmental Biology at UBC but was also a few credits short of a Creative Writing minor; she has been trying to make up for that ever since.